Sail Away to the Docklands Maritime Festival 2010

Head on to Dublin for the Docklands Maritime Festival that offers exciting water-based activities as well as to enjoy the carnival-like atmosphere with theater performances, concerts and an outdoor market.

HolidayCity.com – Join thousands of maritime enthusiasts and revelers who are heading to Dublin for the Docklands Maritime Festival from 4th – 7th June 2010. Celebrating its seventh anniversary, the festival takes place on the north and south quay of the Liffey and promises an exciting time for everyone with a variety of attractions for all ages to enjoy. Dublin hotels would be doing a brisk business with many visitors coming from far and wide.

One of the busiest areas would be the river with a host of magnificent tall ships such as the Jeanie Johnston, Bessie Ellen and Notre Dame de Rumengol together with L. E. Aoife, an Irish naval ship that would be welcoming visitors on deck to experience what life at sea is all about. For a more relaxing excursion, visitors can go on the Liffey River Cruise who'd be offering leisurely cruises along the river. For those who would like to stay on dry ground, there are plenty of activities for them to enjoy ranging from street theater, musical performances and an outdoor market. Rows upon rows of stalls would be available selling all sorts of items from clothing, jewellery, paintings, arts and craft and a fabulous selection of food item such as home-made breads, cheese and other local delicacies.

Lee Lai Huat, CEO of HolidayCity.com, remarked, "Anybody who's interested in the maritime should make an effort to attend Dublin's Docklands Maritime Festival at least once in his or her lifetime. It's not just a maritime show with some of the finest tall ships on display but a fun place to be with your family and friends." He went on further to say, "If you're looking for a great outing over the June Bank Holiday weekend, this is the place to go. Be sure to watch swimmers brave the cold water to participate in the annual Docklands Swim. And save on room rates when you book Dublin accommodation with HolidayCity.com."
