Cultural Heritage Takes Centerstage at Venice Restaura 2010

The beautiful city of Venice pays homage to the conservation and restoration of cultural heritage at the Venice Restaura.

HolidayCity.com – The annual exposition on the conservation and restoration of cultural heritage, Venice Restaura, would be held from 2 – 4 December 2010 at the Venezia Terminal Passeggeri. A dedicated meeting point for thousands of professionals, companies’ representatives, artists and others involved in the business of restoration, the exposition also attracts the general public who are interested in viewing artworks restored to their former glory. Venice hotels would certainly enjoy brisk business with thousands expected to attend the event.

At Venice Restaura, Italian firms involved in the restoration activity, who participated in the exhibition organized in collaboration with Veneto Cultural Heritage Cluster, would get the chance to establish contact with representatives from European and international businesses, enabling them to offer their expertise and expand their wings at the global market. The exposition would also once again focus on creativity where exchanges of new thoughts, theories and development of new products and solutions are encouraged. There would be numerous meetings, discussion and debates, and conferences on conservation and restoration of artwork at Venice Restaura.

Lee Lai Huat, CEO of HolidayCity.com, said, “Venice Restaura may not appeal to the masses but for those who are involved in the conservation and restoration of precious artwork, it is a must-visit event. It’s a great opportunity to meet and listen to the experts in the field as well as to look at the latest solutions developed by companies involved in the industry.” He went on further to remark, “The fact that it is held in Venice, one of the most beautiful cities in Europe, wouldn’t hurt. Visitors are advised to book their Venice accommodation in advance to avoid any disappointment.”
